It is evident, however, that the imperative need of the art is for a far greater number A record of these tests was published in Electrical Review, Chicago, March 22, 1919. of exhaustive tests covering many industries, tests which not only establish the range over which illumination may be profitably increased for a given operation, but which are also carried to such a point of extremely high illumination that an actual decrease in economy is recorded, due to the increased production, if there is any, being insufficient to compensate for the p. dded cost of the light. All of these needs seem so simple and so obvious that you are inclined to ask why hasnt all this been taken care of long ago. The answer is that those...
