Reviews

Great electronic book and useful one. It can be written in straightforward terms rather than difficult to understand. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.

MESENCHYMAL STEM CELL AGING: IMPLICATIONS FOR CELLULAR CARDIOMYOPLASTY

Book Condition: New. Publisher/Verlag: LAP Lambert Academic Publishing | A Theoretical Exposition | Cell-based therapy geared at the replacement of lost myocardial cells, and subsequent regeneration of damaged myocardial tissue is a viable and attractive therapeutic option. Bone Marrow derived Mesenchymal stem cells (BM-MSCs) have emerged in recent years as a practical and clinically relevant stem cell for the technique of cellular cardiomyoplasty. Enthusiasm for BM-MSCs is however tempered by evidence that cells from older donors show measurable and qualitative changes in their efficacy. This work provides a theoretical exposition on why BM-MSCs are a preferred cell source for cardiac regeneration, outlines aspects of their appeal that is diminished by natural aging, and discusses approaches to their in vitro cardiomyogenic differentiation. Also presented is a theoretical discussion of the physiological significance of nuclear cardiac troponins and tropomyosin with regard to BM-MSC specific cardiomyogenesis, the importance of the stem cell niche environment, and its potential contribution to diminished BM-MSC plasticity with advancing age. | Format: Paperback | Language/Sprache: english | 72 pp.
