Mathematics is the study of real-world science of space in the form and quantity of relationships. and its core is thinking. Core is also thinking of intelligence. the inseparable relationship between mathematical ability and intellectual development in children. . We found that the characteristics and laws of the development of children's mathematical abilities has a mental age mental age of normal children and children with special needs. math ability test comparing. It should be said that most normal children kissing mental age and physiological age. but there are also a small number of children's mental age is higher than the physiological age or below the physiological age. The same physiological age children in the development of mathematical ability and there are differences. share common characteristics with children of the same mental age. This suggests that physiological age children as a standard to determine the content of mathematics learning. and can not meet the development needs of all children. For this reason. the number of children of the same mental age capacity development characteristics prepared on the basis set Child Care concept math tutorial . not only teachers and parents can use this textbook mathematics education of children. but also by the children to master teaching materials . to determine the initial level of development of the child's mental age. \ T executive summary should...
