RareBooksClub. Paperback. Book Condition: New. This item is printed on demand. Paperback. 44 pages. Original publisher: Washington, D. C. : U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Economic Research Service, 2007 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)173607052 Subject: Food stamps -- United States. Excerpt: . . . WIC Participation and Weight About half of all WIC participants are children between the ages of 1 and 4. Research on the relationship between WIC participation and childrens weight indicates either no association or a negative one - that is, WIC participants are less likely to have overweight problems. One study exam-ined trends in the prevalence of overweight among children who received WIC over the years 1992, 1994, 1996, and 1998 (USDA, 2001). This study found consistently increasing prevalence of overweight among WIC chil-dren across age, gender, and race ethnicity. The study did not compare WIC children with eligible nonparticipants, but other studies have done so for single periods of time. A study by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention that used 1988-1991 NHANES data found no difference for Black and White children in the weight status (weight-for-height Z-scores) between WIC participants and eligible nonparticipants (CDC, 1996). This study did, however, find that Mexican-American children who participated in WIC had significantly lower weight-for-height than Mexican-American children who were income-eligible for the program but did not participate. Using two-stage least-squares and State differences in Medicaid eligibility policies to control for participants self-selecting into the WIC program, Bitler and Currie (2004) estimated the effect of WIC on BMI, weight, and the probability of being at risk of overweight for children ages 4-6 who 4 4 participated in WIC at age 4. Results from this study showed that WIC Medicaid participants are adjunctively eligible for WIC benefits (if they also participation...
